Mary Lois Ames Is The Bride of James Lee Beck

White candles placed amongst white gladioli, ferns and palms illumined the Queen'sborough Baptist church last Sunday at 4 p. m. for the marriage of Miss Mary Lois Ames, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Ames of Hope, Ark., and James Lee Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Beck of Shreveport. The Rev. Ira H. Peak, pastor of the church, officiated. The bride was escorted by the Rev. A. B. Milwee at the organ played several selections and accompanied Ned Wright in song.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length dress of chintilly lace over satin, with fingertip veil held to her head by a tiara of orange blossoms. Her colonial bouquet was of tuberose and a single lavender orchid, the white satin streamers caught with single valley lily sprays.

Mary Jane Ames and Vivian Lee Ames, nieces of the bride, were candlelighters. Miss Barbara Holsey of Lake Charles was maid of honor. Miss Holsey wore an ankle-length dress of pink taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet of purple asters, tied with pink ribbon streamers. The little girls wore long dresses, identically styled, of blue net over taffeta, with bandeaux of pink carnations.

Mr. Beck was best man for his son and Curtis Tanner, Jr., and W. K. Hinton were ushers. Mrs. AmeschlsahaqBoi em cni For her daughters' wedding, Mrs. Ames wore navy crepe, with pink accessories and the mother of the bridegroom wore navy with rose accessories. Both had corsages of vanda orchids.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Beck were hosts at a reception for their son and his bride at their home on Boss avenue. White flowers—gladioli, zinnias, dahlias—combined with green and white calladium leaves, were arranged effectively in the living rooms.

The bride's table, covered with a lace cloth, held in the center a silver candelabra holding white tapers and draped with tulle and fern, in front of which the bride placed her bouquet. At one end was the repoussed silver punch bowl and at the other was the tiered wedding cake, embossed with sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. A cluster of these fresh blossoms graced the top tier. Here, Mrs. J. W. Ames Jr., sister-in-law of the bride, poured punch and Mrs. J. E. Lovejoy and Mrs.

DOROTHY DIX Compromise

Dear Miss Dix: A man five years younger than I wants to marry me. He is kind, reliable, gentle, generous. Interested in my hobbies. He loves me very much. He is in a prosperous business. But he doesn't come up to my ideals. He is careless about his manners and it jars my nerves. He is not good-looking and does not fascinate me. I am 37 years old and I realize that my chances are slight of finding another opportunity to marry, and that the space of time in which I hope to have a child is short. That is something I greatly desire. But I wonder if I should remain single and live in these dreams, or marry.

Answer: That is a question that no one in the world can answer but yourself, for only you can tell whether you prefer dreams that never come true to the reality of a warm human companionship. There is no reason in these days why a woman should marry, just to be a-marrying. The bachelor girl can have her own home, her social circle, her pleasant trips, her freedom, her busy, interesting life, and she is generally well off from every practical standpoint, if not better, off, than her married sister.

No Need To Marry So there is no reason for any woman to marry except for love. If you do not love this man and his little peculiarities get upon your nerves, and especially if you feel that he is your inferior, you are not likely to find happiness in such a union. But if your only objection to him is that he does not thrill you, you are certainly a romantic goose to throw away all that he offers you.

It seems to me that this man is offering you so much that you might well overlook his lapses in manners, but if you are going to let them make you unhappy, then let him alone. Leave him free to marry some woman who will care more for his kind heart and the luxuries he can give her than she will about his deficiency in manners.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I board with my aunt. Pay her $10 a week and she gives me a nice room and good meals. I like to sit with my legs over the arms of upholstered chairs and she objects. Says it spoils and soils a chair, but I don't see why I should worry about her chairs so I still sit that way. I like to do my laundry in the bathroom and hang it there to dry. She has asked me to do it in the basement, where there are tubs and

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edith Kutz

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Edith Frey, the former Miss Frey, who has been in the news for some time, is now in charge of the Frey & Company, an advertising agency. She has been in the news for some time, and has been in the news for some time. She has been in the news for some time, and has been in the news for some time.

CHUCK STONEHAM'S "brain-wave" and Vernon's execution of it made a profound impression on Reagan. And even Jeff Frey, more nervous than ever these days, admitted that the campaign was a honey.

"If Northcott won't take it," he declared, "it'll be because he's made up his mind not to take anything we do."

"Oh, it can't be that bad, Jeff," Edie said. "I know you can sell him this campaign."

She had decided to let Jeffrey present the new idea without interference from herself or Reagan. After all, Jeff had been handling the account all along. And she still had the feeling that he resented her being in the business. Well, she would give him a clear field, as much as she could.

As it happened, Jeff was unable to make an appointment with Northcott for several days. Northcott said, over the phone, that he was pretty well tied up. He was pleased, however, that Frey & Company had sparked something new. He would be glad to see it on the following Monday. Meanwhile, he had determined to have this Saturday to himself, business or no business. Would Jeff play golf with him?

CWO Burns arrived in Wiesbaden in 1948, and is now assigned to the 25th Communications Sq. His wife and daughter Virginia Rae, joined him in Wiesbaden in June, 1949.

love with her." "Swell world, isn't it?" Gil said, with his faintly-cynical smile. "A cockeyed puzzle." But there was a thoughtful look in his dark eyes.

ON the Sunday night following Jeff Frey's golf date with Lewis Northcott, Edie went for a long motor ride with Gil. It was late when they got back and he left her at her door. Edie entered the house to find it apparently deserted, but with lights blazing all over the first floor.

Her first thought was that the servants had been extremely remiss. Then she remembered. This was Sunday night. The servants were out.

She ran upstairs, becoming conscious, as she neared the top, of the sound of footsteps pacing back and forth. Jeff's room was just at the head of the stairs and she knocked on the door. There was no response. Edie waited a second, then pushed the door open.

Jeff Frey was certainly not responsible for the footsteps. Just at the moment he wasn't responsible for anything. There was a low light burning in the room. And in an armchair, an empty decanter and a half-empty glass on the table at his elbow, sprawled Jeffrey.

"Jeff!" Edie cried sharply, her tone a mixture of annoyance and disgust. His only reply was a heavy exhalation of breath, virtually amounting to a snore.

She crossed the room swiftly, seized Jeff by the shoulders and shook him. It was no use. His head merely rolled foolishly from side to side and drooped to one shoulder the instant she stopped shaking.

For a moment Edie stood there, undecided. Then she backed out into the hallway. This was a fine state of affairs, but if Jeff had found it necessary to drink himself into a stupor, and she couldn't think why it had been necessary, at least he had chosen a safe place for it. She closed the door upon him. And suddenly she heard the footsteps again.

The acting mayor revealed he had decided definitely on the O'Brien-Murphy switch yesterday after receiving a communication from the Brooklyn grand jury.

The police commissioner is removable by the mayor or the governor. Impellitteri's term runs out at the end of the year.

Impellitteri, campaigning for election in November, ditched any plans he may have had to pick a new police commissioner from the ranks.

Instead, he turned to the 44-year-old Murphy and made him the first non-policeman to head the force in 16 years.

The grand jury, backed by Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. McDonald and County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz, curtly demanded a civilian commissioner yesterday to clean up "an awful mess."

As for further changes in the said last night:

"That is entirely up to the new police commissioner."

said he talked things over with

DiMaggio Is Leading the Yankees

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Peerless Joe DiMaggio is playing the leading role again in the New York Yankees' mad dash to their 17th American league pennant.

DiMaggio's booming bat has blazed the Yanks into the competing 8 1/2 game lead they enjoy today. Only a miracle will prevent the Yanks from winning their second straight championship.

Casey Stengel's Marauders have six times left to play and need to win only four to sew up the pennant. If they win only three the runnerup Detroit Tigers would have to take all of their seven just to tie the Bombers.

Three Yankee victories would eliminate the third place Boston Red Sox.

As a matter of fact, with a little luck the Yanks can eliminate the Tiers today. All they have to do is beat Washington twice while St. Louis knocks off Detroit twice.

DiMaggio has been knocking the tar out of the ball since the stretch drive began Sept. 1. The big guy has hit safely in his last 17 games and in 21 out of 22.

This terrific .391 pace has lifted DiMaggio's season average over the .300 mark for the first time this year. During this streak DiMaggio has belted out 34 hits with half of the blows falling for extra bases — eight doubles and nine home runs.

Allie Reynolds and Ed Ford, sensational rookie left handers, were on the mound yesterday as the Yanks turned back the Washington Senators, 8-3 and 7-4.

Reynolds scattered nine hits to hang up his 15th victory in the opener and Ford granted only seven in bagging his ninth without a set-back in the finale.

DiMaggio was the big gun in both games. He drove out three of the Yanks' 15 hits in Reynold's triumph. In the nightcap Di-Maggio poled a three-run double to ignite a six run third inning rally.

The Red Sox kept their faint hopes alive by sweeping a doubleheader from the hopeless Philadelphia Athletics, 8-0 and 3-0, in the only other American league activity.

Mel Parnell blanked the A's on three hits in the opener to post his 18th victory. Harry Taylor, recently purchased from the Brooklyn organization, shut-out the Atletics on two safeties in the finale.

The Philadelphia Phillies made some hay in their National league pennant drive. The Phils divided a doubleheader with the Braves in Boston while the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers split a day-night twin bill with the New York Giants to remain five games back.

Philadelphia now needs to win only four of the remaining seven games to clinch its first pennant since 1915. If the Phils win only three games the Dodgers would be forced to take all of their nine to tie the Whiz Kids.

Ken Heintzelman, making his first start since July 30, pitched the Phils to a 12-4 victory in the opener.

The Braves took the nightcap, 5-3, to spoil Jim Konstanty's record-tying 70th relief appearance.
The Braves snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth with a two run rally.

Konstanty, in making his 70th relief job, tied Ace Adams of the Giants for most games pitched in a single season. Adams set the mark in 1943 when he worked in 65 games as a relief pitcher and five as a starter.

On another front, the huge CIO Steel union started a campaign to make every worker in the basic steel industry join — or give up his job.

The USW asked the national labor relations board to hold union shop elections among 80,000 workers in 17 plants of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation in four states.

During World War II, the steel industry and the union began an arrangement called maintenance of membership where by union status is frozen except for stated intervals between contracts. That system still is in effect.

In the fabricating industry, where basic steel is converted into finished products, the USW has won about 200 union shop elections.

More petitions requesting union shop elections in basic steel companies other than Carnegie-Illinois are on the way, union officials said.
